The FCC should not prevent LightSquared from making use of available spectrum in order to protect poorly designed equipment that is supposed to be operating on another spectrum. If the GPS providers truly need that spectrum they should buy it out from LightSquared or find some way to make a fair trade.