Any interruption of the GPS signals will cause the whole farming industry to return to wasteful uses of the past in farming, spraying, surveying, planting, harvesting. Millions of dollars of GPS equipment will be useless. It seems wasteful on the FCC's part to even think of letting a company use the frequencies dedicated to national defense and numerous other users. I am asking that the GPS system be allowed to remain intact.

Clint Hanshu